

Abstract

The present invention relates to oral pharmaceutical preparations in the form of pellets in which a benzimidazole compound is stabilized by combining it with microcrystalline cellulose.